

STATE POLICE BUSY CHECKING THE ALIBI OF "GUS" SCHAEFFER

Trace Alleged Movements In Philadelphia at Time of Murder

ONE LINK IS MISSING

James Still Insists He Did Not Murder William H. Dunstan

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 20.—Gustave Schaeffer's claim that he was in Philadelphia at the hour he is accused of murdering William Harold Dunstan, at Peters Corner, near Doylestown, has been checked in detail by State police, it was revealed today.

Captain Samuel Gearhart, of the State police, refused to comment on the reports submitted to him at the West Reading barracks, but said they would be used for a further questioning of Schaeffer, named by Calvin E. James as the man who fired the five fatal shots.

James insists he was sitting in Dunstan's motor early Sunday morning when Schaeffer killed the thirty-two year old rubber salesman, after he had been lured from his home in Doylestown.

"The theory that Dunstan was shaking down the bootlegging ring operated by Schaeffer is quite believable," Captain Gearhart said. "However, the definite connection of Dunstan with Schaeffer, and James has not been established. There is a missing link in James' confession, which, when found, will establish an incontestible motive for the shooting.

"James has not been made to repeat his confession in the presence of Schaeffer, although they were questioned together for a few minutes Wednesday.

"Furthermore, Schaeffer will not be given an opportunity to speak in James' presence until the reports of all investigations are filed."

Both James and Schaeffer are kept under constant guard in the State police barracks at West Reading.

James, who is twenty-five, apparently has told the truth in the opinion of District Attorney Arthur Eastburn, of Bucks county.

"I'd like to see the kids," James said, referring to his daughter, Doris, two, and Edward, one. "It's been a long time since I've seen them. It's a good thing they're real young and don't know what this is all about. I don't know what my family thinks of this mess, but I know that this confinement is tough on me." James, his wife declares, deserted his family a year ago.

"Dunstan was killed in cold blood. I gave the gun to Schaeffer before we took Dunstan out to Peters Corner, and it was not fifty yards from where I parked the auto that he pulled the gun on Dunstan and shot him down."

"Schaeffer was walking right behind him and fired at close range, being probably not more than five feet away at the time. I heard the reports distinctly, and helped place the body in the car. I was nervous then, and still am."

James' fingers beat constantly on woodwork near him, and he folded and unfolded his hands in the manner of a man whose thoughts are entirely disconnected and uncontrollable.

James is a short, lightly built, frail man. He has blonde hair and pale blue eyes. His face is thin and worn, wreathed in wrinkles and heavy lines.

He wore a wrinkled blue serge suit, a white shirt, blue and white checked socks, black shoes. His hair is unkempt, long and stringy.

Schaeffer is a large, heavy set man, weighing about 195 pounds. He was wearing a brown suit with a small stripe, a dark tie, a white shirt and tan shoes.

Formal arraignment of the suspects before Justice of the Peace W. Carlisle Hobensack, at Doylestown, awaits reports on Schaeffer's alibi.

Two State policemen questioned Disbrow Petty, Upper Darby policeman, yesterday afternoon, and took to Reading two pistols, one of which Petty said James borrowed without permission, and which James accuses Schaeffer of using in the slaying. James lived with Petty, his brother-in-law.

The policemen also searched the house for possible clues and visited places in Philadelphia where Schaeffer said he was on Saturday night and Sunday morning.

Relatives of the slain man insist he had no business dealings with James and Schaeffer, both of whom were known as bootleggers around Doylestown. He had met both men while he was doing extra work in a drug store and that, his friends declare, was the extent of his acquaintance.

They explain Dunstan's willingness to leave his home at midnight Saturday night with James as typical of the man. James told Dunstan, they declare, that his car had broken down and that he wanted to go to Mechanics Valley, several miles away and asked Dunstan to take him and Schaeffer in his car. Dunstan is described as the type of man who was friendly with everyone and thought nothing of the request.

STUBBORN BLAZE AT ZINC PLANT KEEPS FIREMEN ON JUMP

Old Power-House of Shipyard Becomes A Roaring Furnace

TWO PUMPERS AT WORK

Great Volume of Water Used To Quench the Angry Flames

Practically all of the fire fighting equipment of the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department was brought into service last night in order to stop a fierce blaze encountered in one of the buildings of the Superior Zinc Corporation's plant, here. The flames were controlled after quite a battle on the part of the firemen which lasted over a period of two hours.

It was 10.15 when the alarm was struck and the fire being in the vicinity of what is termed "high valued" district all five pieces of apparatus went to the scene and were put into service.

The fire was in the building known as the old power house during the ship yard days. It is of brick with slate roof and is located directly opposite No. 2 gate down along the river. At the present time it is being used as a store house and the machinery which was left in it from the time of the war is being dismantled.

Workmen yesterday were in the building cutting the heavy machinery apart with acetylene torches. It is believed that either one of these torches was left burning or else the flame has come into contact with some inflammable material and the fire had smoldered from quitting time until it burst into flame.

There were several piles of railroad ties which has been treated with creosote and because of this made ready fuel with which to feed the flames.

When the firemen arrived the interior of the building was a roaring furnace. The flames had crept up the walls to the roof and the framework beneath the slate had burned away. This permitted pieces of slate to break loose and fall onto the firemen as they worked below. Several were cut and bruised by this falling slate and glass. Several of those injured were treated at the Harbinger Hospital for minor injuries. Among them were the following: Nelson Arcolese, 915 Wood street, left eye injured by piece of burning timber; "Patsy" Strafe, 1020 Wood street, laceration of third finger of left hand; A. Andrews, 1042 Trenton avenue, cut on right leg; Thomas Ryan, right hand cut.

Chief James L. McGee and First Deputy George W. Buckley and Second Deputy Fred H. Kenyon responded and the fight against the flames was directed from three points.

Both the 750 gallon pump and the 1,000 gallon pump were put into service and great volumes of water were directed through the monitor pipe, which acts as a miniature water tower, and carried a very effective stream to the peak of the building.

Today Chief McGee and the vice-president of the plant viewed the damage and estimated the loss at $5,000. The alarm was sounded at 10.15 and the firemen were in service until 12.30.

FOREST FIRES BURN OVER BIG PORTION OF STATE

Thousands of Acres of Brush And Timberland Have Been Destroyed

VOLUNTEERS FIGHT IT

HARRISBURG, Apr. 20.—(INS)—More than half a hundred forest fires which swept over various sections of the state late yesterday had been brought under control today, according to reports reaching the Department of Forests and Waters here.

It was estimated that almost 3,000 acres of brush and timberland had been destroyed. Many of the fires got beyond control and, fanned by high winds, raged unchecked until the early morning hours. None has been reported injured, but several dwellings were destroyed by the flames.

In the Weiser district near Mount Carmel, flames destroyed about 1,200 acres of timberland and for a time threatened houses in the northern section of Locust Gap. Fire Warden W. J. Smith estimated that much of the game recently liberated in this section perished in the flames.

In the vicinity of Pottsville more than 40 fires were reported late yesterday, but most of them were minor and were quickly extinguished. Two homes were destroyed near Mahanoy City as the flames swept over a large area.

More than 500 acres of brush and timber were destroyed by fire which raged in York County near Marsh Run throughout yesterday afternoon and early last night. A group of cottages in the path of the flames was saved when the fire was checked before it jumped a small creek.

More than 100 acres were burned near Boyertown, Berks County, and other fires of a less serious nature were reported in Wayne, Adams, Perry and Lehigh counties. All had been brought under control.

DISTRICT MEETING OF P. O. OF A. HELD HERE

Out-of-Town Guests Numerous; Minstrel Show A Success

REFRESHMENTS SERVED

A district meeting of the Philadelphia Bucks District No. 7, P. O. of A., was held in Trades Hall, Wood street, Wednesday night.

There were delegates from Southampton, Trenton Camps, Nos. 7, 37 and 5, Yardley, Morrisville, Philadelphia, and the local P. O. S. of A. Lodge. About 125 attended.

The first part of the evening was devoted to a business meeting. At this time Mrs. Warren Thompson was endorsed as district president for another year.

The women of the local lodge then gave a minstrel show, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The members of the circle were dressed in old fashioned costumes, except Mrs. Louis Townsend and Mrs. Warren Thompson, who were the end men, and their costumes were mirth provoking. The jokes were on the members of the lodge. The program was as follows:

Opening chorus, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia;" solo, "Dawn of Tomorrow;" Adeline Smith; reading, Mamie Britton; solo, "Dew, Dew, Dew Day;" Jennie S. Townsend; solo, "Among My Souvenirs;" Mrs. Glenn Thompson; solo, "Sweetest Story Ever Told;" Mrs. Ruth Neil; solo, "Ice Cream;" Nettie Thompson; solo, "My Blue Heaven;" Edith Britton; solo, "The Song is Ended;" Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Williams; reading, Hilda Albright; solo, "Just Rollin' Along;" Mrs. Bunting; finale, "Your Land and My Land." CORRECT POSTURE EXPONENT GIVES TALKS

Captain Godfrey Rodrigues Explains Importance Of Posture to Health

TALKS TO "DADS" ASS'N

Captain Godfrey Rodrigues, correct posture exponent, paid his second visit to Bristol last evening.

On this occasion two addresses were made, one before members of the Fathers Association of the Bristol public schools, and a second to the members of the Bristol Exchange Club.

The captain was accompanied by a youth of 17, who is one of a group of boys who have been under his charge. At the Fathers' Association session in this particular youth had been changed from a sallow, stoop-shouldered individual, into a healthy specimen.

"All this has come about because of correct posture," Rodrigues explained. He then went on to tell that nature intended that the chest should be thrown out, and the stomach in, in order to facilitate correct breathing. "One should not sit upon one's stomach," he told. "If correct forms of carriage and breathing are carried out it will be found these are the best medicines, and health will be greatly improved."

A two-reel "Our Gang" comedy, shown through the courtesy of Edward Lynn, manager of the Grand Theatre, was thoroughly enjoyed.

The session was presided over by V. V. Vansant, vice-president. Following the program refreshments of sour kroust, "doggies," rolls and coffee, were served.

A talk upon the same subject, but in a slightly different vein, was given by Captain Rodrigues to the Exchange Club members at their meeting in the Elks' Home. Here a dinner was also enjoyed, and Chief of Police John J. McGuckin and members of the local police force were present in uniform as guests of the club. Chief McGuckin also made a few remarks. William H. H. Fine presided over the meeting.

HIGHER EDUCATION

A Western professor tells of a student, "20 years old who in five years had managed to get through a reputable high school, was prepossessing in appearance and manners, showing that his home environment was above the ordinary, wore good clothes, drove competently his own high-powered automobile and was promptly initiated into one of his fraternities," yet could not do any better than this in a recent examination:

Why has New York become the largest city in America?—"Because of its size and wealth. It covers such a large area."

You are hauling a load of lumber; the horses get stuck in the mud and there is no help to be had. What would you do?—"Go for help."

Why should women and children be rescued first in shipwreck?—"There ain't any reason."

Why should people have to get a license to get married?—"There would be too many marriages."

The professor confesses that this specimen of collegiate ambition is not unique and complains that the effort to impart a college education to such minds is worse than wasted. But the real question that must appear to every thoughtful reader is how this youth of 20 "with a mentality of 12½ years" ever got into college? Are there no entrance examinations, or if the high school certificate is accepted as sufficient is there not need for some means of testing the aspirant's capacity for collegiate training? Perhaps that might solve the overcrowding of applicants some institutions complain about.

GIRLS AND ATHLETICS

Discussion of what girls should or should not do never loses its interest, and one of the most relentless phases of such discussion is that in regard to athletic sports. Following the decree by a few doctors, both men and women, that girls should avoid strenuous games, there now comes endorsement of such games by the Affiliated Gymnastic Society.

Horrible consequences are predicted by a woman teacher at the English College of Furzedown if girls are restrained from sports—they will become catty and shrewish, or barring these, they may become flirts or develop morbid tendencies.

This teacher attributes to women an instinct usually believed possessed only by men, the fighting instinct, and for it she must have an outlet or develop the unpleasant qualities mentioned.

Another teacher declared that girls who play do not have time to powder their noses; they do not spoon along the road with young men so much, and when they marry they have more children than girls not addicted to sports.

Meanwhile, although the popularity of athletic sports for girls is growing all the time, it is a little soon to prove either side of the case.

There doesn't seem to be much repentance now. The way of the transgressor is hard-boiled.

When the train is coming, the driver who tries to beat it over the crossing is going.

A writer says that $800 a year is enough for a family of three to live on. This is too much!

Many a man thinks he has an inspiration to work, as long as it is not the kind that produces perspiration.

The illustrations of the Nash Advanced Six and Special Six Sedans, shown above, point out two very great advantages which belong to everyone who drives the Nash.

For climbing hills, going around other cars, getting away in front at a traffic start, Nash has extra power and greater flexibility, produced by the highly perfected, precision balanced, Nash 7-bearing motor, and the equally famous Nash straight line drive.

Coming down hills, driving in traffic, meeting a sudden emergency—Nash 2-way 4-wheel brakes surround Nash owners with exceptional safety. And they also require the minimum of attention and adjustment, because of their 2-way and fully equalized design.

The extra power and extra safety of Nash travel cost you nothing, as you will discover if you compare Nash prices to the prices asked for other cars. Nash leads the world in motor car value!

AN INSISTENT DEMAND

Place the enforcement of the American dry law solely in the hands of officers who respect and obey it, is the demand that is growing more insistent day by day. Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, formerly governor of Wyoming, adds this plea:

"I have no sympathy with any official who would defy or ignore the prohibition law, or any law. The official who would seek to evade responsibility to the enforcement of law is not the proper person for the position. The oath of office is sacred. Every agency at hand for the enforcement of law must be employed unceasingly. This disrespect for law is one of the greatest problems facing America today."—The Christian Science Monitor.—(Adv.)

Modernize your Apartments

The Apartment Model
Only 24 inches wide

Built for limited space, the Apartment Model has a food shelf area of six square feet, yet it occupies less than three and a half square feet of floor space.

APARTMENT owners and agents are fast learning the value of properly equipped up-to-date apartments.

For these apartments are the first to be leased — they suffer no profit-eating vacancies.

Now apartments can be quickly modernized at a cost surprisingly low! General Electric has perfected a new, revolutionary Apartment Model General Electric Refrigerator that is years ahead.

Just like the larger, more expensive General Electric Refrigerators, the Apartment Model has no pipes, drains or attachments — plug into the nearest electric outlet and it starts.

All the mechanism is scaled in an air-tight casing mounted inside the coils. It is worry-proof — needs no attention — not even oiling!

Install it and forget it! Everything is automatic. And you will find it unusually economical and pleasingly quiet in operation.

The Apartment Model is entirely porcelain enamel inside and out. "A de luxe refrigerator at a new low price," is the opinion of those who have seen it.

Come in and examine this new model today!

James Confesses Triple Murder

Upper Darby Resident Admits Having Slain His Uncles, Thomas and Joseph Erwin, Who Were Found Murdered on Their Farm Near Jamison, Bucks County Three Years Ago, and William H. Dunstan, Doylestown, Salesman--- Is Now Enroute to Doylestown From Reading With State Troopers.

(INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE)

DOYLESTOWN, April 20.—Calvin E. James, 26, of Upper Darby, formerly of Doylestown, has confessed to the murder single-handed of William Harold Dunstan, 32-year-old Doylestown salesman, and to the murder of his two uncles, Thomas and Joseph Erwin, on their farm near Jamison, Bucks County, three years ago.

This was revealed this afternoon in long-distance telephone conversation by District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn.

James, in company of State Troopers, is now enroute to this borough from Reading, for arraignment before Justice of the Peace W. Carlile Hobensack, on a charge of murder.

James, Eastburn said, confessed the motive for the murder of the two relatives was robbery.

He is understood to have made a signed confession, giving the details of the three slayings.

The slaying of James' two relatives took place on October 20, 1925, near Jamison, Bucks County, Eastburn revealed.

Dunstan was killed because he refused to pay James $150.00 for liquor he is alleged to have purchased for the latter, State Police said.

The Erwins were shot because they demanded payment of $150.00 they had loaned to their nephew.

Police authorities announced that Gustave Schaffer, 45, of Upper Darby, a suspect, will be released when he is brought to Doylestown. He was accused of the Dunstan murder by James, but denied it incessantly. Police say Schaffer's alibi is puncture proof, that he has proved conclusively that he was in Philadelphia at the time the murder was committed.

For more than 50 hours, Schaffer denied being implicated in the murder, and branded James as "a liar."

James has contended that Dunstan was murdered by a bootlegging gang because he sought to extort money from them. James admitted having lured Dunstan to his death. He told State Troopers that Schaffer had asked him to bring Dunstan to an isolated section of Bucks County known as Mechanicsville Road and that the salesman became engaged in an argument with the bootlegger and then he fired five shots into his body. The body was then dumped in the Lehigh canal where police recovered it.

The Troopers continually hammered at James' story for many hours but he refused to give a different version and remained defiant until finally this morning he showed signs of weakening.

"You did it—you killed him," fired Captain Samuel Gearhart, commander of the Reading State Police Barracks.

Finally James slumped and sought to murmur another denial, then collapsed completely. "I did it," he confessed, police state. Then authorities allege he made a full confession, stating that he fired the bullet with the pistol he had borrowed from his brother-in-law, an Upper Darby policeman, after driving through the country with Dunstan in the latter's automobile on Saturday night.

James further accepted full guilt for the dual slaying of the Erwins, police state, thus clearing up a mysterious murder which has been investigated for three years.

Dunstan disappeared from his home in Doylestown late Saturday night and his body was fished from the Lehigh Canal, fifteen miles above Doylestown, on Wednesday afternoon.

The Confession

James' confession consisted of eight single space, typewritten pages. The confession read in part:

"Dunstan, for some time," James said, "owed me a lot of money. He wasn't going to pay me so I decided to bump him off. I got my brother-in-law's gun and decided to go looking for him."

"I went to Doylestown Saturday night. I called at his house three times and finally found him at home. I was going to wait until he came. He saw me and asked what I wanted."

"I didn't mention a thing to him about the money but that was what I was thinking about all the time."

"I said, 'you are going up the River Road with me, Dunstan, to my still, which I am operating up there. I was up there today and it looked to me as though Federal agents had been up there snooping around, trying to make it. I want you to go along with me and make sure.'"

"He argued with me and said he wouldn't go, but finally got into the car. I persuaded him he had to go."

"We drove in his car to Doylestown and over to Peter's Corner right past the lane where I finally killed him."

"We stopped the car and I pointed to the lane. He got out and started to walk towards it. Just as we got to the other side of the highway I pulled out the gun and let him have it."

"He got the whole five shots. He fell as he was hit and turned on the way down. The last shot went through his chest."

"I then grabbed him by the coat collar and dragged him across the road. I pushed his body into the car and propped it up in the rear seat. Then I drove to the Delaware House where I knew there was a bridge across the Lehigh Canal. There I halted the car and dragged the body out and heaved it over the bridge into the canal. Then I drove to Doylestown and then on to Philadelphia to Upper Darby where I parked the car."

The car was found abandoned on Tuesday near Upper Darby a short distance from where James lived with his brother-in-law.

About five pages of the confession dealt with the slaying of Dunstan, while the other three referred to the murder of the two Erwin brothers, uncles of James' estranged wife.

James, previous to making his confession, had been subject to third degree methods of the State Police in their barracks at Reading. Captain Samuel Gearhart this morning was still questioning the confessed slayer who up to that time had made every effort to place the blame for Dunstan's death upon Gustave Schaffer, of Upper Darby.

James, who is twenty-six, apparently has told the truth in the opinion of District Attorney Arthur Eastburn, of Bucks county.

"I'd like to see the kids," James said, referring to his daughter, Doris, two, and Edward, one. "It's been a long time since I've seen them. It's a good thing they're real young and don't know what this is all about. I don't know what my family thinks of this mess, but I know that this confinement is tough on me." James, his wife declares, deserted his family a year ago.

James' fingers beat constantly on woodwork near him, and he folded and unfolded his hands in the manner of a man whose thoughts are entirely disconnected and uncontrollable.

James is a short, lightly built, frail man. He has blonde hair and pale blue eyes. His face is thin and worn, wreathed in wrinkles and heavy lines. He wore a wrinkled blue serge suit, a white shirt, blue and white checked socks, black shoes. His hair is unkempt, long and stringy.

DISTRICT MEETING OF P. O. OF A. HELD HERE

Out-of-Town Guests Numerous; Minstrel Show A Success

REFRESHMENTS SERVED

A district meeting of the Philadelphia Bucks District No. 7, P. O. of A., was held in Trades Hall, Wood street, Wednesday night.

There were delegates from Southampton, Trenton Camps, Nos. 7, 37 and 6, Yardley, Morrisville, Philadelphia, and the local P. O. S. of A. Lodge. About 125 attended.

The first part of the evening was devoted to a business meeting. At this time Mrs. Warren Thompson was endorsed as district president for another year.

The women of the local lodge then gave a minstrel show, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The members of the circle were dressed in old fashioned costumes, except Mrs. Louis Townsend and Mrs. Warren Thompson, who were the end men, and their costumes were mirth provoking. The jokes were on the members of the lodge. The program was as follows:

Opening chorus, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia"; solo, "Dawn of Tomorrow," Adeline Smith; reading, Memie Britton; solo, "Dew, Dew, Dew Day," Jennie S. Townsend; solo, "Among My Souvenirs," Mrs. Glenn Thompson; solo, "Sweetest Story Ever Told," Mrs. Ruth Nell; solo, "Ice Cream," Nettie Thompson; solo, "My Blue Heaven," Edith Britton; solo, "The Song is Ended," Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Williams; reading, Hilda Albright; solo, "Just Rollin' Along," Mrs. Bunting; finale, "Your Land and My Land."

With 27 points to their credit pupils of the Croydon public school won first place at the scholastic meet conducted for the Bristol Township schools at the Croydon school-house last evening. The parents of the pupils and the public in general responded to the invitation to attend the meet. The group was slightly handicapped for room owing to the fact the affair was held in one of the classrooms, there being no school property available with larger seating capacity.

The placing of the students in the various events was as follows: Art: Tony Casmirri, Edgely, first; Estella Smith, Croydon, second; Della Dowgillo, Newportville, third.

Written spelling: Anna Mae Sorey, Croydon, first; Anna Dougherty, Edgely, second; Mary MacArthur, Edgely, third.

STUBBORN BLAZE AT ZINC PLANT KEEPS FIREMEN ON JUMP

Old Power-House of Shipyard Becomes A Roaring Furnace

TWO PUMPERS AT WORK

Great Volume of Water Used To Quench the Angry Flames

Practically all of the fire fighting equipment of the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department was brought into service last night in order to stop a fierce blaze encountered in one of the buildings of the Superior Zinc Corporation's plant, here. The flames were controlled after quite a battle on the part of the firemen which lasted over a period of two hours.

It was 10.16 when the alarm was struck and the fire being in the vicinity of what is termed "high valued" district all five pieces of apparatus went to the scene and were put into service.

The fire was in the building known as the old power house during the ship yard days. It is of brick with slate roof and is located directly opposite No. 2 gate down along the river. At the present time it is being used as a store house and the machinery which was left in it from the time of the war is being dismantled.

Workmen yesterday were in the building cutting the heavy machinery apart with acetylene torches. It is believed that either one of these torches was left burning or else the flame has come into contact with some inflammable material and the fire had smoldered from quelling time until it burst into flames.

There were several piles of railroad ties which has been treated with creosote and because of this made ready fuel with which to feed the flames.

When the firemen arrived the interior of the building was a roaring furnace. The flames had crept up the walls to the roof and the framework beneath the slate had burned away. This permitted pieces of slate to break loose and fall onto the firemen as they worked below. Several were cut and bruised by this falling slate and glass. Several of those injured were treated at the Harriman Hospital for minor injuries. Among them were the following: Nelson A. Andrews, 915 Wood street, left eye injured by piece of burning timber; "Patsy" Straffe, 1020 Wood street, laceration of third finger of left hand; A. Andrews, 1042 Trenton avenue, cut on right leg; Thomas Ryan, right hand cut.

Chief James L. McGee and First Deputy George W. Buckley and Second Deputy Fred H. Kenyon responded and the fight against the flames was directed from three points.

Both the 750 gallon pump and the 1,000 gallon pump were put into service and great volumes of water were directed through the monitor pipe, which acts as a miniature water tower, and carried a very effective stream to the peak of the building.

Today Chief McGee and the vice-president of the plant viewed the damage and estimated the loss at $5,000. The alarm was sounded at 10.16 and the firemen were in service until 12.30.

HIGHER EDUCATION

A Western professor tells of a student, "20 years old who in five years had managed to get through a reputable high school, was prepossessing in appearance and manners, showing that his home environment was above the ordinary, wore good clothes, drove competently his own high-powered automobile and was promptly initiated into one of his fraternities," yet could not do any better than this in a recent examination:

Why has New York become the largest city in America?—"Because of its size and wealth. It covers such a large area."

You are hauling a load of lumber; the horses get stuck in the mud and there is no help to be had. What would you do?—"Go for help."

Why should women and children be rescued first in shipwreck?—"There ain't any reason."

Why should people have to get a license to get married?—"There would be too many marriages."

The professor confesses that this specimen of collegiate ambition is not unique and complains that the effort to impart a college education to such minds is worse than wasted. But the real question that must appear to every thoughtful reader is how this youth of 20 "with a mentality of 12½ years" ever got into college? Are there no entrance examinations, or if the high school certificate is accepted as sufficient is there not need for some means of testing the aspirant's capacity for collegiate training? Perhaps that might solve the overcrowding of applicants some institutions complain about.

GIRLS AND ATHLETICS

Discussion of what girls should or should not do never loses its interest, and one of the most relentless phases of such discussion is that in regard to athletic sports. Following the decree by a few doctors, both men and women, that girls should avoid strenuous games, there now comes endorsement of such games by the Affiliated Gymnastic Society.

Horrible consequences are predicted by a woman teacher at the English College of Furzedown if girls are restrained from sports—they will become caty and shrewish, or barring these, they may become flirts or develop morbid tendencies.

This teacher attributes to women an instinct usually believed possessed only by men, the fighting instinct, and for it she must have an outlet or develop the unpleasant qualities mentioned.

Another teacher declared that girls who play do not have time to powder their noses; they do not spoon along the road with young men so much, and when they marry they have more children than girls not addicted to sports.

Meanwhile, although the popularity of athletic sports for girls is growing all the time, it is a little soon to prove either side of the case.

There doesn't seem to be much repentance now. The way of the transgressor is hard-boiled.

When the train is coming, the driver who tries to beat it over the crossing is going.

A writer says that $800 a year is enough for a family of three to live on. This is too much!

Many a man thinks he has an inspiration to work, as long as it is not the kind that produces perspiration.

AN INSISTENT DEMAND

Place the enforcement of the American dry law solely in the hands of officers who respect and obey it, is the demand that is growing more insistent day by day. Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, formerly governor of Wyoming, adds this plea:

"I have no sympathy with any official who would defy or ignore the prohibition law, or any law. The official who would seek to evade responsibility to the enforcement of law is not the proper person for the position. The oath of office is sacred. Every agency at hand for the enforcement of law must be employed unceasingly. This disrespect for law is one of the greatest problems facing America today."—The Christian Science Monitor.—(Adv.)

Modernize your Apartments

The Apartment Model
Only 24 inches wide

Built for limited space, the Apartment Model has a food shelf area of six square feet, yet it occupies less than three and a half square feet of floor space.

APARTMENT owners and agents are fast learning the value of properly equipped up-to-date apartments.

For these apartments are the first to be leased — they suffer no profit-eating vacancies.

Now apartments can be quickly modernized at a cost surprisingly low! General Electric has perfected a new, revolutionary Apartment Model General Electric Refrigerator that is years ahead.

Just like the larger, more expensive General Electric Refrigerators, the Apartment Model has no pipes, drains or attachments — plug into the nearest electric outlet and it starts.

All the mechanism is sealed in an air-tight casing mounted inside the coils. It is worry-proof — needs no attention — not even oiling!

Install it and forget it! Everything is automatic. And you will find it unusually economical and pleasingly quiet in operation.
